

Fujifilm Holdings Corp. (Fujifilm)

TICKER
4901

MARKET CAPITALISATION
US$16.6 billion

HEADQUARTERS
Japan

DISCLOSURES
UK Modern Slavery Act: Yes \(Disclosure of Subsidiary\)
California Transparency in Supply Chains Act: Yes \(Disclosure of Subsidiary\)
Australia Modern Slavery Act: Yes \(Disclosure of Subsidiary\)
OVERALL RANKING
36 out of 45
2022 Rank: 45 out of 60¹
OVERALL SCORE
9 out of 100
THEME-LEVEL SCORES

KEY DATA POINTS
FIRST-TIER SUPPLIER LIST
 No

RISK ASSESSMENT
 No

ENGAGED WITH KNOWTHECHAIN²

Yes

NO-FEE POLICY
 No

REMEDY FOR SUPPLY CHAIN WORKERS
 No

HIGH-RISK SOURCING COUNTRIES³
 Not disclosed

SUMMARY

Fujifilm Holdings Corp. (Fujifilm), a technology hardware company supplying to companies such as Hewlett Packard Enterprise, ranks 36th out of 45 companies. Since 2022, the company began disclosing detail on the content, format and participants of its supplier training focused on forced labour risks, as well as managerial responsibility for implementing supply chain forced labour policies and board oversight of those policies. However, the company did not improve across other themes and performed particularly poorly on the themes of Purchasing Practices, Recruitment, Monitoring and Remedy, scoring zero. As such, the company maintained its score. The company is encouraged to improve its performance and disclosure on the themes of Traceability & Risk Assessment, Enabling Workers' Rights and Remedy.

LEADING PRACTICES

None.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR IMPROVEMENT

Traceability & Risk Assessment: While the company notes the use of self-assessment questionnaires for suppliers, the company is encouraged to assess and disclose forced labour risks across different tiers of its supply chains, including detail on the sources used and stakeholders engaged to assess risks. It is further encouraged to disclose how it engages with relevant stakeholders including workers, unions, and civil society organisations to address forced labour risks identified. The company is further encouraged to demonstrate a strong understanding of its supply chains by disclosing the names and addresses of its first-tier suppliers, the names and locations of below-first-tier suppliers, and the countries from which it sources raw materials at high risk of forced labour.

Enabling Workers' Rights: While the company has a functioning grievance mechanism open to external stakeholders to raise issues about "human rights and supply chains", and is a member of JaCER, the company should ensure that the mechanisms are actively communicated to its suppliers' workers and relevant stakeholders, such as worker organisations or labour NGOs. Further, the company is encouraged to take steps to ensure that workers in its supply chains are able to exercise their rights to freedom of association and collective bargaining.

Remedy: The company may consider establishing a process to ensure that remedy is provided to workers in its supply chains in cases of forced labour and disclosing details on this process, such as responsible parties, approval procedures, timeframes, and, crucially, engagement with affected stakeholders. To demonstrate to its stakeholders that it has an effective remedy process in place, the company is encouraged to disclose examples of remedy provided to its suppliers' workers.

¹ The number of companies assessed in the ranking has decreased from 60 in 2022 to 45 in 2025.

² Research conducted through September 2024 or through December 2024, where companies provided additional disclosure or links. For more information, see the full dataset here. For information on a company's positive and negative human rights impact, see the Business & Human Rights Resource Centre website.

³ For further details on high-risk raw materials and sourcing countries, see KnowTheChain's 2025 ICT benchmark findings report.